Nashville '96

The 4th Annual Meeting of the I.S.H.R.S. was well attended and rewarding scientifically as well as socially. These meetings generate an excitement and magic which is difficult to duplicate at smaller meetings (although these certainly have their place, as there is usually more opportunity to meet the speakers and exchange information).

The organizers and Russell Knudsen in particular are to be commended for their foresight and planning. After the experience of three previous meetings, a single-streaming format was retried and worked very well.

In this issue of Forum there are reviews of the meeting by James Arnold and a number of scientific papers. These are papers which I received before Nashville. Other outstanding papers will be presented in the next two editions as they come to hand.
