Volunteer Translators Needed

The Forum is looking for volunteers to translate the Forum into any non-English language. It is our intention to create text documents in several languages that could be opened and printed from our Website at ISHRS.org, or have the documents routinely e-mailed to requesting doctors. Ideally, it would be our goal to have several volunteers in any given language to share the work load. If you speak both English and another language, we certainly would appreciate any help in this regard. If interested, please contact Dr. William Parsley at bparsley@bellsouth.net.

* PLEASE NOTE:

Author Consent Release Form Mandatory with ALL Submissions

All submissions to the Forum must include an electronically signed Author Consent Release Form. The electronic form is quick and simple to complete. The form may be obtained from the Forum editors or managing editor, Cheryl Duckler, at cduckler@comcast.net, You can also access it online at www.ISHRS.org, in the Members Only section under "Forum Newsletter."

Digital Camera

In summary, mindfulness of not only the fiddly, technical aspects of photography, but also the often overlooked, common-sense aspects such as background clutter are both key to taking good clinical photographs. Ensure that the white balance is set correctly, lens distortion of the face and head is mitigated by attention to the camera's zoom lens (middle of the range is best!), lighting is ample and diffuse, and the background environment is not distracting, and the remainder is all up to your good work as HT assistants!💎

Let treatment begin as soon as possible...
